The municipality of Lozoyuela-Navas-Sieteiglesias has been traditionally linked to livestock farming as a main source of wealth, and even today there is an important quantity of livestock, of both sheep and cattle.

Roads were essential to move livestock, as they connected villages and made it possible to bring animals to fairs and markets, to look for new pastures, etc. Therefore, one of the main objectives of this project is to recover those traditional paths and put them in value, for use and enjoyment by residents and visitors, as well as to promote sports tourism, by organizing hiking tours and learning the artistic heritage of the different towns the paths pass through.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION:

The archaeological project "Castros de Laciana" began in 2009 with the realization of an archaeological survey whose objective was to catalog the existing archaeological sites in this territory. Once this task was carried out, three hill-fort settlements were selected for their excavation, carried out through small slots to verify the characteristics of each one of them. Finally, in the year 2013, large extensions were dug in the hill-forts of La Zamora (Sosas de Laciana) and La Muela (Rioscuro). These works allowed knowing their periods of occupation as well as the forms that their houses and walls took, being nowadays two places visitable by the public. The site where the "Laciana 2017" Work Camp will be carried out is La Muela. In this hill-fort numerous remains from prehistoric and Roman times (ceramics, glass, metals, stone tools...) were recovered along with the walls of several buildings and a fort of great dimensions.

LOCATION:

Betanzos is a municipality in Galicia, in Northwestern Spain in the province of A Coruña. It belongs to the shire of Betanzos. The fountain is located within the site of Carregal, in an urban area within the ring road Avd. do Carregal/Avd. Fraga Iribarne e a Avd. Juan García Naveira.

The Fonte das Catro Estacións was a part of the once great complex of Gardens of Pasatempo in Betanzos. It was built between 1893 and 1914 by García Naveira brothers, two former emigrants in South America and philanthropists. Apparently their plan was that of replicating the stand of a universal exhibition (so much in vogue in those days) It must have had a total surface of 90.000 m² but the only currently preserved part is of about one tenth due to a long term ruin during the postwar period.

In terms of the territory we can say that it is a municipality with a large flat surface, although there are tops, Monte da Graña with 570 m and Monte Enxameado with 610 m, that help to divide the territory into three basins: the river Mandeo, of the Mendo River and the streams which form the headwaters of the river Tambre.

LOCATION:

This work camp is located in the village of Celanova (Ourense), 25 kilometers from the capital of the province, close to the border that separates Portugal-Ourense. It is well connected by highway AG-31 recently constructed, which puts us just over an hour from the cities of Santiago and Vigo, and their respective airports. It is a mid-mountain, with soft green valleys and hills, by Arnoia River, a tributary of the main river in Galicia, the Minho.

Celanova has an important and unique heritage that reflects the passage of time and stands as a great example of the historical evolution in Galicia. From the archaeological site of Castromao (reflection of the Castro culture and Romanization) to two Poets House, this serves as memorial of two of the leading writers of Galician literature Curros Enriquez and Celso Emilio Ferreiro, both born in Celanova. Its architectural heritage is supplemented by the medieval town of Vilanova dos Infantes, the Mozarabic chapel of St. Michael and the impressive monastery of San Rosendo, a major monastic building in Galicia.

It should also be noted that close to Celanova is Xurés Natural Park and the National Park of Peneda-Gerês Portugal, two areas of great natural and geographical beauty.

ACCOMODATION/FOOD:

Participants will be accommodated in tents in the work camp of Cies Islands (Vigo-Pontevedra). The site also has buildings as dining room and bathrooms. Breakfast, lunch and dinner will be provided by specialized staff.

LOCATION:

This work camp is located in the Cies Islands, in Monte Agudo Island (on the north) to be precise, on the Ría de Vigo, in Vigo Municipality.

The Cíes Islands and archipelagos of Cortegada, Sálvora and Ons, belong to the National Park of Atlantic Islands of Galicia.

The ecologic value of its marine habitat is invaluable because here there are some of the most representative examples of Atlantic marine eco-systems.

Marine habitat of the National Park is a big mosaic of different habitats that support an extraordinary diversity of flora and fauna. We can find habitats defined by the European Community like "community priority": reefs, lagoons or sandbanks covered all the time by no deep marine waters.

On land we can find "community priority" habitats too, likes the grey dunes or the "aerohalins" littoral bushes or the southerner Atlantic humid heath bushes.

The most important problem in the National Park conservation is the human pressure. In Cies Islands the eucalyptus plantations, pines and acacias have occupied the place of native plants. The eradication of these plantations is a very long place process and the National Park is working in and the results will be seen gradually.

Nowadays, it is being developed an appropriate management of the public use, the islands residues, the navigation, the sail, etc.

NOTE: This work camp has no access for physical disabled people.

COMPLEMENTARY ACTIVITIES - LEISURE ACTIVITIES:

ACCOMODATION/FOOD:

Participants will be accommodated in tents in the work camp of Cies Islands (Vigo-Pontevedra). The site also has buildings as dining room and bathrooms.

Breakfast, lunch and dinner will be provided by specialized staff.

LOCATION:

This work camp is located in the Cies Islands, in Monte Agudo Island (on the north) to be precise, on the Ría de Vigo, in Vigo Municipality.

The Cíes Islands and archipelagos of Cortegada, Sálvora and Ons, belong to the National Park of Atlantic Islands of Galicia.

The ecologic value of its marine habitat is invaluable because here there are some of the most representative examples of Atlantic marine eco-systems.

Marine habitat of the National Park is a big mosaic of different habitats that support an extraordinary diversity of flora and fauna. We can find habitats defined by the European Community like "community priority": reefs, lagoons or sandbanks covered all the time by no deep marine waters.

On land we can find "community priority" habitats too, likes the grey dunes or the "aerohalins" littoral bushes or the southerner Atlantic humid heath bushes.

The most important problem in the National Park conservation is the human pressure. In Cies Islands the eucalyptus plantations, pines and acacias have occupied the place of native plants. The eradication of these plantations is a very long place process and the National Park is working in and the results will be seen gradually.

Nowadays, it is being developed an appropriate management of the public use, the islands residues, the navigation, the sail, etc.

NOTE: This work camp has no access for physical disabled people.

Description of Workcamp:

Historically, the Paular valley has been linked to the Batanes Estate as an industrial development model linked to sustainable use of resources, such as the use of different hydraulic devices to harness water power. The proposed actions are intended to add value to the remains of these infrastructures as well as other conservation measures. Tasks to be performed at "Los Batanes" estate: -Hydraulic architecture, canals, ponds and mill: Removal and clearing of vegetation that hides and obstructs, thus favouring the preservation of their traditional uses. Integration of these elements into the landscape to positively impact on their multiple functions (i.e. vegetation, amphibians, watering and landscape). Reposition and replacement of lost elements to ensure their continuity. Enhancement of thematic areas or zones planted with species used for paper manufacturing in the past to help to understand the use of various hydraulic devices. - Trails: As a continuation of the work done in the previous workcamp, the roadbed will be strengthened, small runoffs will be corrected, remains will be cleaned and silted water passages will be improved. - Landscape improvement: Adaptation and naturalization of wooded areas on the estate under the guidance and supervision of National Park managers. - Create signs and/or explanatory panels: - Industrial architecture of the estate - Species reservoir (amphibians, reptiles, birds) - Assess the possibility of conditioning elements that may be used as a supplement to adapt the path for the blind. - Traditional walls: Continue rebuilding the stone perimeter fence to prevent uncontrolled entry of livestock, raising openings and improving putlog holes and gaps to help the transit of wildlife. - Dissemination and preservation: In coordination with the managers of the natural area, to assist in the dissemination and awareness of the environmental values of the area, and carry out tasks that help to its preservation. Take photographic pictures to prepare the annual report.

Description of Workcamp:

Moralzarzal is an area linked to stone (granite) and Dehesa landscape (semi-wild land combining agriculture, pasture, hunting and forest resources). Due to its location in the foothill of Sierra de Guadarrama National Park, this is an area of environmental and naturalistic interest. Workcamp participants will be lodged at the villages of El Boalo, Cerceda and Matalpino, which are located at the entrance of the National Park. http://elpais.com/diario/1998/06/29/madrid/899119463_850215.html. Tasks to be done : - Cleaning of quarries. As quarries are located in the territory owned by the village, they have had an urban use as meeting places. The Quarries' environment has been deteriorated by urban solid wastes and graffiti. - Fence. Quarries to be cleaned are in the Dehesa Vieja in Moralzarzal, where livestock stays for much of the year. We propose to protect the quarries with a simple fence (with no ecological footprint or construction) to prevent access of livestock to drink and defecate in winter, when quarries are flooded. - Signalling. Information regarding traditional human uses of the Dehesa should be considered as part of the environmental signalling. Stonework is one traditional use that should be included in the information panels for visitors. -Recovery of biological species. The quarries at the Dehesa remain flooded most of the year. Protected species of amphibians such as the Iberian ribbed newt and tritons need to be recovered. On the other hand, in the forest, seedlings of shrub species such as Cytisus scoparius or Retama sphaerocarpa could be planted inside the fenced area.

COMPLEMENTARY ACTIVITIES - LEISURE ACTIVITIES:

- Swimming pool (municipal sports center).
- Open-air concerts (Constitution square) and at the Cultural Association Sorcas site.
- Excursions in the Pedriza (near El Boalo, Cerceda and Matalpino).

Description of Workcamp:

The municipality of Lozoyuela-Navas-Sieteiglesias has been traditionally linked to livestock farming as a main source of wealth, and even today there is an important quantity of livestock, of both sheep and cattle. Roads were essential to move livestock, as they connected villages and made it possible to bring animals to fairs and markets, to look for new pastures, etc. Therefore, one of the main objectives of this project is to recover those traditional paths and put them in value, for use and enjoyment by residents and visitors, as well as to promote sports tourism, by organizing hiking tours and learning the artistic heritage of the different towns the paths pass through. Tasks to be performed: Restoration of paths/roads: Restore different routes to get to different municipalities: This requires that the following tasks be performed: Access Roman Bridge and Sieteiglesias necropolis: Removal and clearing of vegetation that hides and obstructs, thus favouring the preservation of their traditional uses. Integration of these elements into the landscape to positively impact on their multiple functions (i.e. vegetation, amphibians, watering and landscape). Reposition and replacement of lost elements to ensure their continuity. Old Fountain: Removal, clearing and cleaning of vegetation. Channel runoff water which closes the passage through this area corresponding to the road that connects Lozoyuela to Las Navas de Buitrago. The Old Fountain is an architectonic element. Enhancement of tourist areas: Plant vegetation of native species to embellish those areas. Paths and roads: Removal and clearing of vegetation at the sides of roads and paths, correction of small runoffs, cleaning of remains and improvement of silted water passages. Create signs and/or explanatory panels: About flora and fauna of the environment. Dissemination and environmental preservation: Brochures and information panels will be prepared to describe the behaviour we must show when we are in the nature, i.e. do not throw waste, preserve vegetation, walk only on the signalled path, etc.)

COMPLEMENTARY ACTIVITIES - LEISURE ACTIVITIES:

Workshops and group leisure activities will be held together with the young people from Lozoyuela-Nava- Sieteiglesias, and, if possible, from other neighbouring villages such as Mangirón or El Berruoco.

ACTIVITY I: Dinner and Welcome party: All young people in the villages will be invited to this activity, because our main goal is to tell them about the project as well as integration of people with different cultures. A DJ will play music to liven up the evening, and workcamp participants and local youth will be able to meet and enjoy by playing different games.

ACTIVITY II: Cycle-Tourism and canoeing in El Atazar reservoir.

ACTIVITY III: Excursion to Manzanares el Real. We will travel to Manzanares el Real where we will attend the castle's dramatized visit, and, if possible, one of the summer concerts. Available dates for this excursion are still pending.

ACTIVITY IV: "MOON AND STARS". A hiking route by night that ends at Sieteiglesias Necropolis, where several professionals of astronomy will explain us some aspects of our wonderful and mysterious universe. For this activity we will have four telescopes available.

If you come from a large family or in case of presenting the European youth card, you'll have a discount.

Description of Workcamp:

This is one of the oldest settlements in La Rioja, located on the right bank of the river Alhama, close to Inestrillas and Aguilar del Río Alhama, between two small hills. The oldest remains correspond to a burial site dating back to the end of the second millennium before Christ. In the cave of los Lagos (the lakes) some human remains and pottery fragments from the end of the Bronze Age were discovered.

The Peledons settled at Contrebia Leucade during the Iron Age. There, they constructed a fortress, taking advantage of a rocky escarpment over the river, urbanised the land and excavated houses in the rock, with a rectangular floor plan.

Towards the second half of the 4th century before Christ, other Celtiberian tribes arrived. These tribes extended the settlement and reinforced the defensive systems by excavating a deep moat out of the rock and constructing ramparts around the town. Work was also carried out to supply the settlement with drinking water. Then the Romans arrived and conquered the town in the year 142 BC, leading to the Romanisation of the lands of the Alhama river basin.

At present, the archaeological site is one of the most spectacular ones in the Peninsular and is the most significant one for learning about the extent of the Celtiberian technical development and organisational capacity.

Cleaning and preparation of the terrain and structures of archaeological site Contrebia Leucade.

Work camp in the archaeological site will be developed, four hours from Monday to Friday, in the morning from 8,00 to 12,00, to avoid the hotter hours at the cost of getting up early. This schedule allows to leave a small space of time before eating to rest, go to the pool ...

Affect the entire archaeological site and will consist of the removal of vegetation (grasses, bushes and shrubs) were born in the spaces excavated to date, preventing rating in perspective the different elements discovered. Also proceed to the elimination or relocation, when possible, of the loose stones of the walls or washed hillside.

Features and dimensions of spaces and structures formed by compacted earth floors, drywall locked with earth or limestone soils where the roots have penetrated causing breakage and chipping, require extreme care in removing plants and shrubs in any event must be supervised continuously and directly by qualified personnel.

It also seeks to understand the uniqueness of the archaeological site and the motivations that led their people at different stages in which the city was occupied.

Since this is a work camp focusing on an archaeological site, priority should be given to students of ancient sciences.

Description of Workcamp:

This is one of the oldest settlements in La Rioja, located on the right bank of the river Alhama, close to Inestrillas and Aguilar del Río Alhama, between two small hills. The oldest remains correspond to a burial site dating back to the end of the second millennium before Christ. In the cave of los Lagos (the lakes) some human remains and pottery fragments from the end of the Bronze Age were discovered.

The Peledons settled at Contrebia Leucade during the Iron Age. There, they constructed a fortress, taking advantage of a rocky escarpment over the river, urbanised the land and excavated houses in the rock, with a rectangular floor plan.

Towards the second half of the 4th century before Christ, other Celtiberian tribes arrived. These tribes extended the settlement and reinforced the defensive systems by excavating a deep moat out of the rock and constructing ramparts around the town. Work was also carried out to supply the settlement with drinking water. Then the Romans arrived and conquered the town in the year 142 BC, leading to the Romanisation of the lands of the Alhama river basin.

At present, the archaeological site is one of the most spectacular ones in the Peninsular and is the most significant one for learning about the extent of the Celtiberian technical development and organisational capacity.

Cleaning and preparation of the terrain and structures of archaeological site Contrebia Leucade.

Work camp in the archaeological site will be developed, four hours from Monday to Friday, in the morning from 8,00 to 12,00, to avoid the hotter hours at the cost of getting up early. This schedule allows to leave a small space of time before eating to rest, go to the pool ...

Affect the entire archaeological site and will consist of the removal of vegetation (grasses, bushes and shrubs) were born in the spaces excavated to date, preventing rating in perspective the different elements discovered. Also proceed to the elimination or relocation, when possible, of the loose stones of the walls or washed hillside.

Features and dimensions of spaces and structures formed by compacted earth floors, drywall locked with earth or limestone soils where the roots have penetrated causing breakage and chipping, require extreme care in removing plants and shrubs in any event must be supervised continuously and directly by qualified personnel.

It also seeks to understand the uniqueness of the archaeological site and the motivations that led their people at different stages in which the city was occupied.

Since this is a work camp focusing on an archaeological site, priority should be given to students of ancient sciences.

Description of Workcamp:

The work's program will be from Monday until Friday, during 4 or 5 daily hours, generally in the mornings. The archaeological site of the Baños de la Reina is situated on the coastline, close to the promenade in the coastal town of Calp, whose most significant symbol, besides its beaches, is the massive cliff known as Peñón de Ifach. This coastal site contains the origins of the current town, as this place was populated from the beginnings of the Christian Era to the 7th century AD. The remains found in 15 archaeological campaigns has shown that this site was an important commercial enclave in antiquity. Both these remains and the area surrounding the archaeological site need maintenance and preservation work. The main aims of the next Calpe campus are the cleaning and tidying up of the site for its future restoration and valorisation. Your help in this task can be invaluable, and we wish you an agreeable stay in this emblematic Mediterranean town. The work will be carried out in small groups which will shift place and type of work, so that all participants will be able to work in all places and share the work to be carried out.
